Information

Central Wisconsin Center (CWC) for persons with developmental disabilities is one of three residential facilities operated by the State of Wisconsin under the Department of Health and Family Services. CWC has been providing quality care and services for people with developmental disabilities for over 45 years.

CWC is located on 125 acres that has a wild flower prairie and park. There are seven residential units and a short-term care unit on the CWC grounds. Approximately 900 staff serve the needs of over 300 people who live at CWC.

Where We're Located:

Central Wisconsin Center is located on the north side of Madison next to Lake Mendota. Knutson Drive is just off Highway 113/Northport Drive, north of Warner Park. Madison Metro Route 22 stops directly in front of CWC.
